About WHITMAN-WALKER CLINIC

Established in 1973, Whitman-Walker Clinic is a non-profit, community-based provider of health care and supportive services in the Washington, DC metropolitan area. Through three sites in the District of Columbia and Northern Virginia, the clinic offers primary medical and dental care; mental health and addictions counseling and treatment; legal services; and HIV education, prevention and testing. Whitman-Walker Clinic is committed to meeting the needs of the gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender community and people living with HIV/AIDS.

Communities of color are disproportionately affected by the HIV epidemic. African-Americans represent only 13 percent of the total US population but made up nearly half of all new AIDS cases reported in the United States in 2006. Latino men and Latina women account for 19 percent of cumulative AIDS cases in the United States.

Whitman-Walker Clinic has extensive HIV/AIDS prevention services for communities of color and provides culturally compassionate care. Staff members and volunteers provide bilingual access to the Clinic's medical and mental health services and HIV testing and counseling. The Clinic's testing and outreach vans target high-risk African-American and Latino communities with prevention education and rapid HIV testing. We provide those served with knowledge about their HIV status, one of the most important ways to prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS.
